New Dutch Language Summer School for refugees

This summer will see the very first RUAS Dutch Language Summer School for refugees. This course enables students to achieve language level B1 in just three weeks and is organised specifically for refugees who would like to study or work in the Netherlands.

In this intensive training, students will work from beginners level A2 to language level B1, 5 partial days a week. We still have some places available. If you are interested, please register as soon as possible via the email address shown below.

When

The course will start on Monday, 25 July and end on Friday, 12 August. Apart from language classes, culture will certainly not be ignored. You and your fellow students will have ample opportunity to explore the city of Rotterdam together with our teachers.

Learning method

The classes will follow the 'Nederlands in actie' learning method. This book is a required purchase for all the course attenders. As for your Dutch language level at the start, you should be at A2 and have a certificate to prove it. If you do not have an A2 level certificate, you will first have an intake meeting with a language teacher before you can enrol.
